Dear Dr. Fenichel:

It was really very nice of you to be such a helpful Santa Claus. Irrespective of innumerable experiences to the contrary, I still do believe in Santa Claus, and such kindness as yours has given it a great boost.

I read the book with very great fascination and because of its close clinical contact, it gave me more than Lewin's highly speculative "Elation".

If I could occasionally be of any help to you for literary references on the 18th century, I would be happy to do so. Maybe also one of you might sometime be interested in the original Viennese discussion on "Schuler Selbstmord", which I have in the original (1910), edited by Adler, Freud, Steckel and the other boys. I believe it is some kind of a collector's item?

With many thanks again,

Yours,

Richard D. Loewenberg, M.D.
