Dear Dr. Adorno:

At the spring meeting of the San Francisco Psychoanalytic Society, we decided to publish our symposium on Antisemitism.

I am just beginning to tackle this job and have already talked with someone here who is interested in financing this publication. However, this man would like to see the finished product before making up his mind. I am therefore writing to ask you to send me your manuscript of "The Patterns of Anti-Democratic Propaganda."

My idea is that this publication should be concluded by a separate chapter dealing with the possibilities of counteracting Antisemitism by applying psychoanalytic principles. For this chapter, I would like every contributor to think over what practical conclusion he can derive from his own approach to the problem. What do you think about this? Would you please write a brief summary of about two pages and send it to me together with your paper.

Warm personal regards,

Sincerely yours,

Dr. Ernst Simmel
